PIONEER WASHER.
E. G. BOLTER,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It does its work by a reverse motion in forcing the water through the clothes.

It having a tight cover, the steam thus assists materially in cleansing the clothes, and also avoids the scalding of steam from hot suds.

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to all housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women.

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

THE COUNTY RIGHTS, now unsold, will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon.

For Reference, enquire at the Mansion House, and of John Wilson,

The Sheridan Family.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial has lately visited the town of Somerset in Perry county, Ohio, where the family of our gallant General Phil. Sheridan reside. The following account of the family is extracted from his letter

The family now consists of the father and mother, P. H Sheridan, John L. Sheridan, Michael V. Sheridan, and the daughter and sister Mary, who, about two years since, was married to Captain John Wilson, who is a native of Perry county, but served through the war in a Michigan regiment Mary is the only daughter, and since her marriage she and her husband live in the house with her parents. John Sheridan, father of the General, is apparently about sixty-five years of age, of sanguine temperament, a rugged, muscular, honest-looking Hibernian, and not afraid of work. He can be seen at almost any time cultivating or improving the little farm of twenty acres that is now his care and pride John L. is a lawyer by professions, and has recently removed to Columbus (Ohio) Michael V has a commission in the army, and is on duty at New Orleans. He was present at the Mechanics' Institute in New Orleans at the time the members of the Convention were attacked and murdered. His shoulder straps were all that saved him. The villians, it seems, had a wholesome dread of a United States uniform. Mary Sheridan, now Mrs. Wilson, is as lively and talkative as her brother Philip is reticent and sedate. She has a pleasant greeting and a bright smile for every one, looks always on the bright side of life, carries sunshine with her wherever she goes, and in her merry, ringing laugh there is genuine music She is fluent of speech, and in her conversation there is a mingled humor and pathos that pleases and charms. She was educated at St. Mary's Academy, and for several years was employed as a teacher in the public schools of Somerset. She is proud of Philip, as she has a right to be. Patrick Sheridan, the eldest of the children, greatly beloved by the family and respected by all who knew him, died when he was about twenty-one years of age He had been brought up to the dry goods business, and a short time previous to his death had secured an interest in a firm doing business in Somerset. Mrs. Sheridan, the mother of our hero, is rather a small woman, of dark hair and black eyes, and of a highly sensitive, nervous organization. Some persons would call her superstitious, but others would say that she was a woman who believed in the living presence of the Divine Creator and our close relationship, in some mysterious way, to the world beyond the vail. The objection that she had to Philip going to West Point was the probable necessity of his shedding human blood. West of the Rocky mountains he got into a skirmish with the Indians and he wrote home to his mother that he had actually killed a redskin in battle. This disturbed her greatly, and it was a long while before she could become reconciled. Mrs. Sheridan is a great believer in the power of prayer, and she thinks her prayers saved Philip from many a rebel bullet. No one one who knows her will doubt that she prayed hard throughout our great civil war, not so much for that great military chieftain, perhaps, as for the safety of her darling Philip, for men always remain boys to loving mothers, and it is honorable to human nature that it is so.

The Sheridans are Catholics—most of them, at any rate. Mary is a Catholic, but her husband is a Protestant. A large majority of the Catholics about Somerset—and of the entire county, in fact—opposed the war bitterly from first to last. Only a small number, comparatively, espoused the cause of the Union, but they did so with boldness and determination. But as Philip Sheridan rose higher and higher in the estimation of loyal people, his relatives were subjected to many annoyances and persecutions at the hands of anti-war Catholics. An incident here is worth relating: on one of the General's visits home, a large social party was made, to which he was invited and went. The company was composed principally of opponents of the war, but it was a mere social party, and all was going on well. A disciple of Æsculapius was present, and talking to Philip, indulged in some outlandish abuse of General Rosecrans. The veins of Philip's neck immediately stood out about two inches, and he "slopped over" in a few strong words that cleared the atmosphere of the room amazingly A leading Copperhead who was present said that he would not have had it occur for fifty dollars.

A Volcanic Region.

A correspondent of the Virginia (Montana) Post gives the following description of a region at the head of the Yellowstone river:

A portion of the Bear Gulch stampeders have returned. They have been to the lake at the head of the Yellowstone, and report the greatest wonder of the age. For eight days they traveled through a volcanic country emitting blue flames, living streams of molten brimstone, and almost every variety of minerals known to chemists. The appearance of the country was smooth and rolling, with long, level plains intervening. On the summits of these rolling mounds were craters from four to eight feet in diameter, and everywhere on the level plains, dotting it like prairie-dog holes, were smaller ones, from four to six inches and upwards. The steam and blaze was constantly discharging from these subterranean channels in regular revolutions or exhaustions, like the boilers of our steamboats, and give the same roaring, whistling sounds. They were fearful to ascend to the craters lest the thin crust should give way and swallow them. Hubble, one of the party, who has visited this region before, ventured to approach one of the smaller ones. As he neared its mouth his feet broke through, and the blue flames and smoke gushed forth, enveloping him. Dropping upon his body he crawled to within a couple of feet of the mouth of the crater and saw that the crust around its edge was as thin as a wafer. Lighting a match, he extended it to the mouth, and instantly it was on fire. The hollow ground resounded under their feet as they traveled on, and every moment it seemed liable to break through and bury them in its fiery vaults. The atmosphere was intensely suffocating, and they report that life could not long be sustained there. Not a living thing, bird or beast, was seen in the vicinity. The prospectors have given it the significant name—Hell

PRACTICAL JOKE.—On the shores of Canandaigua Lake, N. Y., there is a lunatic asylum kept by Dr. Cook, who also receives many inebriates. The following occurred at the asylum not long since, and may be looked upon as a good practical joke:

One morning Cook entered the breakfast room, where some convalescents from insanity and a number of reforming inebriates were chatting cosily over the eggs and coffee, and told them to be in readiness for visitors, as a "Teachers' Institute" would be up from the town during the morning to study the treatment of the insane. As the doctor left the room, an inebriate, whom we will call Smith, said

"Now, Cook will come in here with a great long string of pedagogues and schoolma'ams behind him, and tell them that we are perfectly harmless, and that they will not see any dangerous patients. I'll show him to the contrary."

Smith had been in the service of the Northwest Fur Company, and when the doctor came in with his teachers and made the expected assurance of safety, Smith, who was watching from a crevice of his door, dashed out of his room, clad in a complete Indian costume, face painted, hair flying and tomahawk in hand, giving a tremendous war-whoop as he plunged at the head of the "Institute" The scene was indescribable The teachers went flying out of the doors and windows, Smith chasing them through the grounds, the poor doctor half mad at the annoyance and half killed with laughter, and the breakfast table party, who were in the secret, all in convulsions of delight. Explanation was impossible The doctor bore his sorrows like a man, the "Institute" passed resolutions of censure, and the jolly Smith rejoiced at the success of his practical joke, calling it the best spree of his lifetime But we hope nobody will go to an inebriate asylum for the fun of it.

SATURDAY MORNING, SEPT. 21, 1867

The "Blow-out" at Dallas.

The Copperheads have had a "demonstration" at Dallas, and we are favored by one of their organs with an account thereof. The editor who assumes the office of historian on this occasion was himself present at the meeting, and therefore describes the proceedings at considerable length, including his own part therein. A portion of his narrative is devoted to an account of his trip through "the green forests of Oregon," which he writes of just as if he had discovered a hitherto unknown country, whose inhabitants, for "barbarians," had made unexpected and even astonishing progress in civilization. He writes as if he never could have believed, had he not seen it with his own eyes, that any people situated so far over the back side of the world and so very distant latitudinally and longitudinally, from the "swamp lands" of Wisconsin, could show such unmistakable evidences of thrift, progress and enlightenment. But this description is brief, and we are hurried very importunately from the contemplation of a charming rural scene and the enjoyment of balmy air and sunny skies into the atmosphere of a Democratic mass-meeting, the flavor of which was probably not at all improved by the alternation of "earnest, enthusiastic Democrats" between the premises of the lager-beer vendor and the Court House where the meeting was held. Instantly on assembling, speech-making was in order. From various sources we learn that a small attorney of this city proceeded "to open the case," acting the part of Mr. Skimpin preparatory to the "great speech" of Ben. Hayden, who was the Sergeant Buzfuz of the occasion. According to our Mr. Skimpin, as we are informed by voracious witnesses, the case seemed to have very little in it after it was "opened," and after an hour of painful stammering and wretched circumlocution, he sat down leaving his audience in "precisely the same advanced stage of wisdom as before." By this time utter exhaustion, the natural consequence of unusual depletion, ensued; and the crowd was compelled to adjourn to obtain "refreshments." Strengthened and fortified by "refreshment" in its various forms, including potations, in some instances pottle-deep, they returned, a throng hilarious and orapulent, to hear Ben. Hayden in his great character of Sergeant Buzfuz. All the accounts agree that the speech was a roaring performance, and some who heard it inferred from its tone that Ben. sometimes forgot his part and supposed himself playing the lion in the old comedy. But this, no doubt, was a churlish criticism. The orator, Buzfuz for the nonce, proceeded with his case against the "Radicals;" with crushing logic denominated them "liars" and "scoundrels;" accused them of having basely deceived and cruelly wronged the too confiding Democracy; demanded to know whether a party which had proved false to liberty by destroying slavery was fit to rule in this Government; and thematized the party whose manifest intention it was to remove every obstacle which prevented Democrats from associating with and marrying "niggers;" became now fearfully indignant at the idea of forcing such base alliances on the Democracy and defied the "Radicals" to do it, and now begged piteously that the pure Caucasian of Democratic family might be spared such a wretched fate; appealed to his audience to stand firm in the midst of the allurements and dangers by which they were surrounded, and promised that the time was coming when everything would be normal again,—when Democrats would be rescued from their present perilous situation and be no longer agonized by the fear of negro competition. The Democracy grew hopeful, their drooping spirits revived, they thought they saw in the not distant future a prospect that the "nigger" would be put under such disabilities as would give the Democracy the advantage in the race for superiority, put a stop to this terrible competition and secure them an easy victory. Unfortunately full notes were not taken of this speech, so a great part of the performance is irretrievably lost; but those who have heard the speaker on former occasions, can easily fill up the impartial outline which, as reported to us, we have endeavored faithfully to give.

Ben. Hayden appears to have a much better opinion of the Polk county Copperheads, as well as of the species generally, than he had in 1862. Then he was making terrible speeches against them. Nobody was so truculent as he. "If he could have his way he would fill all the prisons in the country so full of Copperheads that their heads and heels would stick out through the doors and windows." It should be stated that at this time Ben. was seeking nominations at the hands of the Union party. He wanted to be Governor, he wanted to be Congressman, he wanted to be anything. He even wanted to be Judge of Polk county; but all these hopes severally failing, he quit the party and joined the much-abused and reviled Copperheads. So now, in going it so strong for the Democracy, Ben. is simply working for a nomination. We don't question but he ought to have it; but if he does not get it the chances are ten to one that he will begin to excoriate the Copperheads again just as he did a short time ago.

The "organ" candidly says that "no attempt was made to forestall the action of the next State Convention by laying down a platform of principles." In other words, it was not deemed advisable to commit the party to any platform, not knowing just what principles might be suited to the Democracy next year. Indeed it is said that the business of the Portland delegation at the meeting was to repress the secession element of the party and prevent an expression of true Democratic principles. Ben Hayden and the Polk county Copperheads were likely to be a little too demonstrative if they were not checked; hence the late pilgrimage from Portland to Dallas. An effort will be made to put the party of unchangeable principles upon an entirely new platform next year.

CHIEF JUSTICE CHASE.—The Chief Justice has written a letter to a friend in Philadelphia, in which he says:

But I do not want to be represented as particularly poor or particularly disinterested. I think I am worth $100,000. I should at any rate, be quite willing to take that sum in five-twenties, and make a clear conveyance of all I have in the world to anybody that will pay my debts. I would willingly be worth a great deal more if I knew of an honest way to get to be worth more. All that people are interested in knowing is that I haven't a cent which of right belongs to them. I didn't serve them to make money out of them, but to save money for them, and I really feel that the rascals who are slandering me ought to be denounced in the mean attempt to injure me in the public esteem. It is much more important to the people than it is to me that those who have served them faithfully shall be fully and generously sustained, otherwise rascality will be at a premium, and those who are trying to make them suspect me will run their arms to their shoulders in their money bags.

On the night of the 22d of August an event occurred only twice recorded in astronomical history. Jupiter appeared without satellites. Three of them passed across the planet's disc, and the fourth was immersed in its shadow. The apparent absence of the moon lasted two hours.

The State Department has just abolished the secret cypher system which it has used since the foundation of the Government, and is getting up a new one, which can be used over the cable for conveying long communications in a brief space.

At one of the stations on the Union Pacific railroad, two sacks of flour and ten barrels of ale were delivered. The question is, what do they intend to do with so much flour?

Congress and the Rebel States.

Some questions were propounded a day or two since by a Democratic cotemporary touching the status of the rebel States, which we take the trouble to answer because the subject is continually misrepresented and befogged by the Democratic press.

I. If Congress regarded the governments of the Southern States abolished during the war, why were Tennessee and other States treated and regarded as States during those years and permitted representation in Congress?

When the States seceded, one of the Senators and perhaps two or three of the Representatives from Tennessee remained loyal to the Government and held their seats till the expiration of their respective terms. They could not be excluded, for it was no fault of theirs that the people of their State had rebelled and abolished their government. But no other seceding State was represented in either branch of Congress during the war. As portions of Louisiana, Virginia and other States were recovered, several Representatives from those districts appeared asking admission, but they were uniformly refused. Senators from Louisiana also asked for admission, but without success. West Virginia was created a separate State and allowed to send members to both Houses, but none of the eleven seceding States, with the partial exception mentioned in the case of Tennessee, were represented in Congress during the war. In this respect Congress dealt with them during the rebellion precisely as it has dealt with them since its close. And it is a noticeable fact that nobody also labored with so much zeal in Congress to prevent the admission of those who occasionally presented themselves as members from the South, as did the Democrats in that body.

II. Why were the Southern States named in the act of Congress, passed during the war, apportioning representation among the States?

Simply because it was not supposed that the rebellion would last forever, and because it was expected that the Union would soon be restored and the States which had rebelled be again entitled to representation. This apportionment was made in anticipation of the restoration of the Union, and if an apportionment were to be made now it would be done on the same basis and for the same reason.

III. If the States of the South were abolished, either by themselves or by the war, why was the amendment to the Constitution, abolishing slavery, submitted to those States for their adoption or rejection?

This amendment was submitted to the ex-States by Johnson and Seward. Congress did not do it. Nobody but Johnson and Seward ever asked them to ratify it. The act of those two men in sending them the amendment for their adoption or rejection was not a recognition by Congress of their existence as States of the Union. Congress has always held that the ratification of the amendment by the rebel States was not at all necessary to its validity.

Johnson himself at the close of the war regarded the rebel States as being merely in a territorial condition. Hence he appointed Provisional Governors over them, and treated them just as he would have treated Territories. If they were States in the proper sense of the word, what right had he to name their Governors? What right had he to disperse one Legislature and summon another? And if they were States in the full exercise of their rights and powers, what right had he to send them the emancipation amendment coupled with a command that it should be adopted? When the Herald answers these questions satisfactorily, we promise to be ready to answer any others which it may propound on this subject.

The Kentucky Election—its Significance.

[From the Frankfort Commonwealth.]

We imagine that we will not be suspected of rancor when we make the following assertions. They are so widely known that it would be "painting the lily" to accumulate proof:

1. John L. Helm, Governor elect, was during the entire war of rebellion, an undisguised sympathizer with the Confederates. He was more than once arrested by Sherman and Rousseau, and more than once engaged in open and covert schemes, which looked solely to the benefit of the rebel Confederacy. He has not, during all the long and weary years of war, breathed one patriotic aspiration for the nation's triumph.

2. John W. Stephenson, Lieutenant Governor elect, has uniformly adhered to the Calhoun school of politics. He has been a true believer in the doctrine of State rights in their broadest and most dangerous interpretation, and an undeviating adherent of John C. Breckenridge. His sympathy for the lost cause is beyond question.

3. John Rodman, Attorney General elect, raised a regiment for service in the Confederate army, and left Kentucky with Bragg in 1862. We have not at hand the details of his military service; but it will not be denied that his heart and soul were in the Confederate cause.

4. D. Howard Smith, Auditor of State elect, was colonel of a regiment of Confederate cavalry, and served in the rebel army during the entire war.

5. James W. Tate, Treasurer elect, was, during the entire war, a partisan of the rebellion. The fact is known to every citizen of this place, and needs no elaboration.

6. Z. N. Smith, Superintendent of Public Instruction elect, has always and notoriously held kind and hopeful views for the Southern Confederacy.

7. James A. Dawson, Register of the State Land office, was for a brief space an acting lieutenant in the Union army. His entire term of Union military duty did not aggregate the number of days employed in the late canvass. Mr. Dawson has been charged with having expressed regret that he ever wore the blue. We have never heard him use the expression—in fact, he has denied it; but his most native energies have, for two years, been used in league with those whom Mr. Dawson know to be unblushing traitors. We think we might safely state that Mr. Dawson would have preferred seeing the South succeed, to witnessing the incidental overthrow of slavery in the triumph of the North.

Such is a list of candidates which a majority of the people of Kentucky have, at a free poll, elevated to office. The people of the nation are authorized to judge of the populace by their representative men. It is a fair inference, that these gentlemen, strung on the cord of a common sympathy for the rebellion, are to be considered the rosary of the Democratic church in Kentucky. Such is our honest belief. Such will be the judgment of all calm minded men.

What then is the practical inference? It is that the "Lost Cause" is found again in Kentucky. That the majority that flinched from shot and shell, are now bold in more treasonable indorsement. The hands that feared to assault the armed Republic, are swift (the danger of life and money past) to become accessories after the fact. The pith of the moral is, they would to-morrow haul with applause, not by any means with material aid, a counter revolution, which would eject Congress from its power and transfer the federal rule to John C. Breckinridge, Jesse D. Bright and Isham G. Harris.

The election on Monday last is a demonstration. Practically, it indorses rebellion. Politically, it insures Republican triumph in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, by greatly increased majorities.

A NEW USE FOR A WIFE.—In rabbit shooting the best person you can take with you as a beater is your wife if you have one. She will be flattered by your desire for her society, and, if she can be persuaded to overcome the dread of fire-arms so natural to women, you will find her a much more useful as well as a more agreeable assistant than the rough mechanical keeper. The general adoption of crinoline has greatly enhanced the value of a steady woman on such an occasion. It makes just the right kind of noise, and, if she wears walks quietly, just the proper amount of it to disturb the rabit without overmuch terrifying him. Its gentle and continuous rustle makes him incline to the quiet of the wood, and keeps him in the language of Scotland yard, "moving on." Of course, if you have not a wife or sister, or grown up daughter, you must take him of the fustian jacket, or some other male companion.—Once a Week.

Some idea of the operations of the American Tract Society is conveyed by the idea that, during the year ending April 1, 1867, it printed nearly 44,000,000 pages of minor reading matter, with enough more in the form of books to make a total of over 215,000,000 pages. These belonged to 817,676 volumes, and over 7,000,000 copies of tracts.

FROM IDAHO.

From the Owyhee Avalanche of the 24th inst. we get the following:

On the night of the 9th inst., A. J. Waters, engineer in the Mineral mill, became entangled in the belt which gives motion to the battery, and before he was able to extricate himself, was forced between the belt and pully over which it passed, breaking and mangling his left thigh in a fearful manner, and otherwise fatally injuring him. He died next day, although Drs. Beckett, Denny and Connolly did all they could to save his life. We learn that deceased was frecently from Lafayette county, Missouri, where his relatives at present reside.

There is now a great excitement on the Oro Fino Mountain, caused by the discovery of a rich ledge, claimed by three different parties under as many different names. Hill Beachy and John C. Holgate claim it under the title of the "Golden Chariot;" Fred. Rentler & Co. as the "North Star," and Fogus & Co., under their new discovery, as the "Ida Elmore." We are not well enough versed in the matter to warrant us in stating an opinion as to whom it rightfully belongs; but understand that Rentler & Co. and Fogus & Co., have compromised; so that the contest will be now between Beachy and these two companies, and before it is decided there will most likely be an expensive litigation. The ledge bears evidence of being immensely rich—from $5 to $20 to the pan being frequently obtained from dirt and decomposed quartz in the immediate vicinity of the ledge. We saw ore tha was taken from the vein near the surface where Fogus is sinking a shaft with fine gold visible to the naked eye over it. The Mineral mill is now engaged in crushing the ore from the Ida Elmore.

This week we made a brief visit to the Oro Fino in company with Mr. Govo, the Superintendent, who acted as guide while we traversed the labyrinths of the mine. We bade adieu to the light of day and went down, down in the darkness until we arrived where numerous candles were lighted and many strong armed miners were taking out the shining ore. The ledge becomes wider and better as it increases in depth. At present it varies from four to seven feet in width, and richer ore than was ever before known in the mine is being taken out. The almost perpendicular casings consist of smooth granite that have a very neat appearance, where the quartz is taken out. Upon our return to the surface we examined the dump pile and found several tons of rock that had the appearance of having come in contact with a shower of molten gold that had spattered over and penetrated it throughout. After the Oro Fino is in shape so that greater quantities of ore can be extracted, it will make Silver City a lively business place without taking into consideration our other numerous and rich mines. Preparations are being made to run the mine and mill (or mills) el winter.

Capt. J. C. Ainsworth, President of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company, is now on a visit to Owyhee, where he is largely interested in mines and mining property—the principal of which now is the Surplus Oro Fino and the Ainsworth quartz mill, on Sinker Creek. The Company of which Captain Ainsworth is President, has spent much money in this camp, and owing to the fact of never having given any personal attention to the expenditure, it has been done to little purpose. The Captain is sensibly pleased with the prospects of this camp, and deems the Company's property very valuable—specially the Surplus Oro Fino, and he is determined to have work proceed at once, and owing to the large business under his care in Oregon, and realizing the importance of those who spend money here to have personal supervision thereof, he has "bonded" the Surplus for one year to Messrs. Walbridge, Culp and Crane, who are to sink one hundred feet deeper as a part of the consideration. Laborers have already been engaged, and with steam hoisting works at hand the work will go right along.

We learn from miners and others who have worked in and visited this mine, that there is an excellent prospect with a little more labor of finding a body of ore equal to the present rich stuff coming from the Oro Fino. The last ore obtained from the shaft was worth $25 per ton. Carefully assorted, the Surplus Oro Fino ore will pay a neat profit from the beginning.

By a recent military order Camps Watson and Logan are excluded from the "District of the Lakes." The names of all new posts will be submitted for approval at Headquarters, Division of Pacific, before they are permanently adopted.

We learn from parties recently arrived from Camp McDermitt that a number of Indians have come in and surrendered, and that they are being employed in the harvest-fields in Queen River Valley.

We are informed that a party of Indians visited a cabin on Sinker Creek last Wednesday night, breaking up a saw, scattering things round promiscuously and playing smash generally.

ADVENTURES OF A STREAK OF LIGHTNING.—The National Intelligencer, at Washington City, says:

During the storm, on Saturday afternoon, a slight current of electricity, either going up or coming down a lightning rod attached to Willard's Hotel, came to a point where the glass insulator had been broken, and the rod had come in contact with an iron spike that supported it against the wall. Here it let go of the rod and concluded to stand its chance on the spike. But the spike, like all other spikes, had an end, and the aforesaid current was not long in reaching it. Here it let go all hold of iron, and darted through the wall, making a hole about half an inch in diameter. Getting inside, it found itself in the room of Mr. Kerr, the cashier of the hotel, (room No. 268), and observing a fine double barreled shot-gun, the property of Mr. Kerr, standing against the wall, it went for it, perforating the green baize covering, and slightly grazing the barrel about half way down; thence it proceeded to cook the left hand barrel, after which it struck and gouged out a portion of the breech, worked its way down to the "deal" thereof, and came out of the covering at an aperture made by itself not the sixteenth of an inch in diameter. The gun was resting on a sheet of zinc, on which the lightning made no visible impression; but a brass spur in the immediate vicinity got scorched a little.

What became of the visitor after these performances is not known. It left no sign further, and if it made any tracks, it, like the Indian, took them up after it.

IT'S TRUE, IT'S PITY; IT'S PITY IT'S TRUE.—While some houses are making a great deal of talk without our foundation, KOHN & FISHEL, No. 91 Front Street, are not talking much, but are constantly selling their Extra Fine Clothing in such immense quantities that this alone is proof enough that they are selling at lower rates than any other house in Portland. OREGON CITY ITEMS.—We clip the following items from the Enterprise, received last evening. On Saturday morning last, at an early hour, the dry house of Mr. T Bartlett, on the west side, was discovered to be on fire It contained several hundred pounds of fruit, in various stages of preservation, but the fire soon it stroyed it all, together with two plows that had been put away for further use Mr. Bartlett is engaged in rebuilding, and probably next week will go on with his operations as usual.....The new ferry boat at this city has been successfully launched, and proves to be among the best of that class of craft.....The boat in course of construction at this city has been built up from two to four timbers higher, and filled with rock, making it one of the most extensive, massive, and complete works of the kind in the State, if not on the coast. This impregnable structure now extends nearly to Canemah, making it impossible for a boat to get out of the channel, as it is above high water mark .....The model of the new steamboat building at Canemah, by the P. T. Company, is considered the finest for speed of anything on the river, and will be adapted to run on the lowest stage of water. The upper rives, as far as Albany, has been cleared out and improved, so that the Enterprise and Echo make regular trips to Albany. The Echo on her last trip beat the stage from Salem to Canemah a long way. Captain A. S Miller, and Purser O E Church, you may reckon, are hard to beat, even by the stage... Within the space of ten days three festivals have been held at the Court House in this city. The first, given as a benefit by the ladies to the Clackamas Base Ball Club, is spoken of as being a very pleasant affair. On Monday evening the pupils of the select school of Miss Harvey gave a supper, and netted a handsome sum to be devoted to the purchase of a piano. Last evening the ladies gave a benefit to the Congregational Church.

SUPREME COURT PROCEEDINGS.—From the Record, we get the following proceedings of the Supreme Court, on appeals from this district:

Sept. 18th.—R. R. Murphy, respondent, vs The Oregon Steam Navigation Company, appellant. Judgment affirmed, and ten per cent. given on the same as damages for delay.

Adam Van Dusen, respondent, vs. James Welch, appellant. Judgment affirmed.

Barney Tranhor, respondent, vs The County of Multnomah, appellant. Judgment reversed.

J. W. Kern, respondent, vs. A. C. Gibbs et al, appellants. Judgment reversed.

Charles McGuire and Anna Maria Maguire, respondents, vs. Samuel M. Stott, appellant. Judgment affirmed.

George H. Williams and J. J. Hoffman, respondents, vs. Della Delschmider, adm'x, appellant. Motion to dismiss appeal argued and submitted.

J. H. Mitchell and J. N. Dolph, respondents, vs. Stephen Coffin, appellant. Case argued and submitted.

Charles Stole, appellant, vs H. Hoback. Case argued and submitted.

Sept. 19th.—George H. Williams and J. J. Hoffman, respondents, vs. Della Delschmider, adm'x, appellant. Motion to dismiss appeal overruled.

J. P. O. Lownsdale, adm'r, respondent, vs. Benjamin Thornally and Johnson Simpson, appellants. Motion to dismiss the appeal sustained.

Wm. M. King, respondent, vs. Walter Moffitt and A. Meier, appellant. Case argued and submitted.

William H. Dolay, Joseph Dolay and Lansing Stout, appellants, vs. W. W. Chapman, respondent. Case argued and submitted.

OUR WHEAT GROWING INTERESTS.—The following from the Sacramento Bee is quite as applicable to Oregon as to California, and presents a very gratifying view of our chief agricultural interest: "The encouragement which meets our wheat in the Eastern and European markets, and the advance in price it there receives above all other wheres ever grown, together with the important fact that the freight from San Francisco to New York or Liverpool is no greater than from numerous of the Western States, and not so much as from many of them, have drawn the attention of our Eastern brethern anew to California. It is a common remark made by many of our Atlantic exchanges that California wheat raisers must be wonderfully rich. They know the capacity of our soil, the peculiarity of our climate, can calculate the expenses and the profits, and from these facts they show that farming here now, with the new market opened all over the world, is a much more profitable occupation than farming in any other State. These notices cannot fail to attract the attention of thousands who will gradually make arrangements to come among us to pursue this calling. In years gone by our surplus grain was a burden. There was no market for it upon the coast, and elsewhere it was not sent because then the price would not warrant the risk. But of late all these things have changed, and we have the world for a market for our wheat just as we have it for our wine, our wool, our gold and silver."

THE RACES AT HILLSBORO.—Having been frequently asked about the days on which the races will occur at the Washington county fair, we have concluded to save our breath by putting the whole programme, as far as relates to races, in print. On Tuesday, the 24th, there will be a trotting race, mile heats, best two in three, (for Washington county horses,) for a purse of $100. On Wednesday, the 25th, at 1 o'clock P. M., a running race, single dash of one mile, for a purse of $150. At 2 o'clock, same day, a trotting race, mile heats, in harness. At 3 o'clock, same day, a walking race, one mile On Thursday, the 26th, at 1 o'clock, a trotting race, open to all, to rule, mile heats, best three in five, for a purse of $200. On the same afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, there will be a foot race, one mile. On Friday, the 27th, the last day, at 10 A. M., there will be a trial of teams, span to be owned by one man, four miles in harness. At 11 A. M., there will be a half mile race, open to all, for $150. At 1 o'clock, there will be a running race, open to all to rule, mile heats, three best in five, for a purse of $200. At half past one, a pacing race, half a mile. The above comprises all the races for which premiums are offered. The rules strictly forbid all foul riding or other jockey tricks.

AN ASTONISHED DARKEY.—Marshal Hoyt yesterday afternoon received a telegram from Marshal Ryan, of Oregon City, directing the arrest of a colored individual named John Lee, who had escaped from custody at Oregon City and taken passage on board the Senator. The Marshal sent Deputy Saunders down to the wharf, who upon the arrival of the Senator, captured the fleeing darkey. John was vastly astonished at his arrest and with vicitoous indignation, strongly mixed with cunning and fear, protested that he owned no one and he could think of nothing for which he should be arrested. Mr. Saunders told him he must come along, as he was to be sent back to Oregon City to serve out his sentence to 20 days' imprisonment for an assault and battery John was more astonished than ever that the news of "what's the matter" should have reached here before him. He weakened and owned the corn; but averred that the Marshal at Oregon City let him go to find fault, and as he didn't know of any at Oregon City, he thought he would not come down here. He will be returned this morning to Marshal Ryan.

POLITICAL SPEAKING.—Our citizens will of course remember that Senator Williams will speak at Oro Fino Hall, on Monday evening, on the political issues of the day. Mr. Williams having carefully observed, from a most favorable position, the political events of the last few years, his address will unquestionably be both interesting and instructive—especially as regards the vexed question of reconstruction. Those who listened to him discussed in an intelligent and argumentative manner would do well to attend. We have been requested to state that the ladies are invited to be present.

THE FIRST STEAMER ON THIS COAST.—The Enterprise says: "There has been more or less speculation as to which was the first river steamboat on this coast. We have discovered in an old scrap book an account of the construction and first trip of the Edward Everett, on the Sacramento, built by the Edward Everett Gold Mining Company, of Boston who reached this coast in a ship called Edward Everett, in May or June, 1849. This was probably the first steamer. She is described as a scow, propelled by steam, with side wheels "

GOOD NEWS FOR SANITAN STOCKHOLDERS.—The Record of yesterday says: "The Union and Sanitan Companies have accepted the offer of Messrs. Salmon & Co to work their mines until June next. The terms are in fact "heads we win, tails you lose." They are to have certain wages, conditioned that the process is furnish the amount. All that is realized over and above the amount of wages, to be divided between them and the companies. If the mines don't pay them the wages, besides meeting other expenses, Salmon & Co. stand the loss."

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's Court, yesterday, only one of the assault and battery cases was tried—State vs. Jacob Koenig. The defendant demanded a jury when the following persons were summoned and sworn as jurors: J. B Price, S. B Parrish, Wm Rickards, Wm Crane, D. B. Hannah and Samuel Bremen. The trial occupied nearly the whole of the day, and resulted in a verdict of "not guilty." The other pending cases were continued till to-day.

NEW HEBREW CONGREGATION.—A number of the more orthodox Israelites of this city have formed themselves into a new congregation and have rented Turn Verein Hall, in which they propose to worship during the coming holidays. The Rev Dr Eckman formerly minister of the Beth Israel Congregation, will officiate He is to arrive on the Sierra Nevada.

WASHINGTON GUARD.—Since the announcement that the Washington Guard would go to Hillsboro upon a target excursion, we learn that the company reconsidered the matter and resolved to make a target excursion to the Fulton House, instead. The excursion will occur on Wednesday, the 25th

THE GAME AT THE STATE FAIR.—Mr Witherell, Captain of the Pioneers first nine, informs us that on Thursday evening, a challenge was received from the Willamette club of Salem to play a match game on Thursday, October 10th—during the State Fair. The challenge, of course, is accepted

WALLA WALLA PEACHES.—The first shipment for commerce, of Walla Walla peaches, was received here by Mr J. O'Connor last evening They were nicely packed in small boxes and arrived in good condition We have many larger peaches in market, but few of better flavor or appearance.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—Arrived per Senator from Oregon City yesterday, 100 pc sks flour, 100 sks feed, 83 boxes apples, 5 bf bbls dried apples, 142 bags wheat, 200 gunnies oats, 31 axles, 3 plates steel, 1 bale bedding, 3 bales woolen goods, 3 mattresses, 2 tons pig iron and 1 box fruit.

PREACHING AT OREGON CITY.—Rev Mr Hoyt, of Trinity Church in this city, will preach at Oregon City to-morrow, morning and evening—in the morning a discourse on the life and evangelical services of the late Rt. Rev Bishop Scott.

SAILED.—The steamship Oregon sailed at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, for Victoria and Nanaimo, without freight or passengers. She was not up for either.

AT IT AGAIN.—Lisle Lester, (Mrs Bigby) who made a tour through this country in 1864, is giving dramatic readings in Idaho.

NOT AS BAD AS REPORTED.—Robert Gamil, who was badly crushed in the machinery of the dredger, Thursday afternoon, was reported yesterday as not so much injured as at first supposed. He was much more comfortable yesterday than had been thought possible

CAMP MEETING.—It is stated that the camp meeting, now in progress at Asbury Chapel, is a "success," several persons having been converted and received into the church. The meeting will close on Monday

BASE BALL POINTS.—The Pioneers of this city will go by the Oneonta this morning, to Vancouver, to play the second game in the match with the Occidental club

RELIGIOUS.—The Rev John Sellwo'd, Jr., of Oregon City, will officiate in Trinity Church, morning and evening, on Sunday, 22d inst.

SOMETHING NEW FOR THE PORTLAND MARKET.—Barman Bros. will receive on steamer Sierra Nevada a large invoice of fine Beaver Clothing, direct from the city of New York On arrival of the steamer call and see them, and we will tell you the prices whether you buy or not. Business is going on briskly now-a-days and high prices are cut to pieces Cheap for cash, at Barman Bros', Front street. Portland and Commercial street, Salem.

MEMBERS OF PACIFIC B. B. CLUB will meet on their grounds at 1 o'clock P. M. to-day.

Money and Business in San Francisco.

The following is from the Union's commercial article dated San Francisco, Sept. 12th:

The past has been a busy week in every department of business. Importers, jobbers and auctioneers have been actively employed, and an immense quantity of all descriptions of goods have changed hands. The details of the export trade, given below, though exhibiting the gigantic proportions this branch of business has reached, are light as compared to the coasting trade. The number of vessels employed in this department is almost incredible, and steadily increasing. The value of our exports is seriously disarranging the plans of the portion who control the monetary affairs of the coast. Capital is accumulating here enormously, owing to our produce more than paying for our importations, which are gradually decreasing as our local manufactures increase. This state of affairs cannot continue for any considerable length of time, without reducing the value of money. When the exports of our produce are sufficient to pay our bills abroad, bullion loses the fictitious value placed upon it, and must fall to the standard of other countries. The high price of money here—the high rate of interest—is wholly the result of combination. There is no sound reason why the rent of gold here, where it is in excess of the demand, shall be five times as dear as it is in London, where the supply is deficient. This question of interest lies at the very root of the trade, commerce and manufactures of the State, stunts their growth and distorts speculation from legitimate channels into gambling in stocks. The sales of mining stocks in this city during August last, reached the enormous aggregate of $7,333,420. This vast sum did not aid the development of the mines, or effect any permanent improvements in this State or Nevada. Had it been invested in constructing roads, railroads, irrigating canals, or in establishing banks at suitable places in the interior, were the present idle capital could be employed, the profits would be perennial and certain, instead of spasmodic and precarious. The high rate of interest keeps money idle, and idle money, like idle individuals, is apt to go astray. Make interest low here as elsewhere, and we should soon see a marked change in the condition of the interior of the State, and instead of San Francisco absorbing one-third of the population, a large proportion of whom live in forced idleness, we should see thousands of acres of new land under cultivation, factories, mills and work-shops established, and the manufactures of California, as well as its natural products, would be found in foreign markets, from which they are kept through the enormous rental of money. We want cheap money more than we want cheap labor. Were the first secured, the last would follow as a natural result.

I have somewhat digressed from my subject of reviewing the state of the market; but I did not consider the mere disposal of merchandise as covering the whole subject of the trade and commerce of such a port as San Francisco. It is because many of our leading merchants have omitted to look outside the beaten track of trade, that we find the present anomalous condition of affairs—of money being dearer here than anywhere else, and accumulating at such a rate as to threaten ruin to those who control most of it. I know of persons in this State who are borrowing money in London and Paris, because it is cheaper there than here. The same collaterals that secure a loan here, are good in those cities.

A SNAKE-MAN.—The Carbon (Penn.) Democrat says:

Recently a fool-hardy individual appeared in our city, and entertained a large crowd on the square, by exhibiting the success he had obtained in charming and handling snakes, of which he had two boxes, comprising many different species, and as many varied sizes and lengths. He had black snakes, red snakes, gray snakes, yellow snakes, blue snakes, rattlesnakes, moors, and many other varieties. After handling ten or a dozen "shooting big" reptiles, he informed the assembled multitude that "them snakes warn't nothin'" if they would contribute ten cents each he would display "dead loads" of them. After the hat had been passed around he produced a second box with a large number of the "varmints," which he strung around and ornamented himself with. This snake-man, we suppose, appears for "one night only" in each place. The showman gave his name as Helm, hailing, he says, from Pike county. He says he has been thirteen years in the business, and tells that he now owns one hundred and seventy-two of these reptiles, with which he proposes to visit Europe. He is a genius in his way. While at Pottsville, we see by the papers, in giving his exhibition, a young woman in the crowd offered to handle the snakes, which she did by placing some of them around her neck, and finally the head of one of them in her mouth. The showman was so struck with the fearlessness and readiness of the woman, that he offered her and engagement to travel with him and exhibit.

SHATTERED CONSTITUTIONS RESTORED by HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

☞ We have but little confidence in the trumpet tongued statements of the proprietors of advertised medicines generally, but we are forced to concur in the opinion, uniformly expressed by all who have used PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, that it is a very valuable article, and one that it would be well for every household to have at hand, in case of bruises, scalds, burns, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera, fever and ague, and the best embrocation, external and internal, which it is adapted to cure or alleviate. No article of medicine ever attained to such unbounded popularity and extensive diffusion. It has penetrated to every part, even the most remote, of the known world, bearing with it its healing influence more potent than those of the spices of "Araby the blest." We are informed by our principal druggists, that they sell more of this article for exportation than any or all others, and that the demand is constantly increasing.—Salem Observer.

The Leaning Tower of Pisa.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin relates his experience in connection with this famous curiosity thus

The famous Leaning Tower of Pisa owes its inclination, as everybody knows to a setting of the ground. From this circumstance, and the natural rising of a city's level, it introduces itself to the modern traveler standing in a pit. A shallow fosse, with usually a little water in it, and neatly incrusted with stone, goes round the edifice. As I approached, with the intention of ascending, I described the custodian morosely sitting on the edge of the stone-work and bathing his feet as it were in the pit.

On my making as if to enter, he quietly barred my passage with a swollen arm and hand—a long exposure to his baths had given a dropsical succulence to his tissues—and began to repeat some long formula in Italian. It was not a moment to kindle one of my inspirations in the knowledge of tongues, but I managed to understand the gist of what he was saying. To ascend legitimately you must be not one person, but three. No one could go up alone.

Chafed by this arbitrary rule, so slighting to my individuality and so inhospitable to the world of single gentlemen, I began to argue—in what language I am sure I do not know—with my stolid opposer. All in vain; he simply placed himself (a pretty accurate stopper) in the doorway and exhibited the printed regulations. I tried corruption—take three fees; he was spotless integrity. I tried pathos—I had come from far, and was going soon, he was marble. I tried humor—did I resemble a suicide? was he afraid of receiving me from the top on his head? I appeared to be sending him to sleep. Then I asked him to accompany me himself—he certainly had in him the making of two men. The demand excited him to a stormy and rather alarming vivacity; he cast a glance up the staircase, weighed his protuberant stomach in his hands, exhibited one elephantine leg, became purple, drew his wrist across his brow, and asked if the signor wished him to burst himself. The ascent so simple a thing heretofore, began to seem impossible. I raged inwardly, and threw an eye of despair to the tempting distance, where, almost hidden by the buildings, the Maritime Alps interlaced with the Appenines under a purple Italian heaven. It was the decline of a golden day. I should never forgive myself if I failed to watch it from the bending tower.

Under these circumstances it was with more pleasure I greeted two wondering priests who presented themselves, than I ever felt in presence of a priest before. Two black forms of priests, crossing the solitary little square which holds the sacred monuments of old Pisa apart, tranquil and meditative as two Isaacs who had come out into the field at the eventide. Their faces looked amiable under the shade of their broad hats, the brims of which were commencing to roll up on three sides like the withering petals of some great black rose; and from the shoulders of each depended that thin and narrow cloak or rail, streaming out as they moved in a pump-handle manner, which I have never seen but on walking priests and opera villains who leave the scene undulating their mantles handsomely upon them. Presenting myself, I respectfully desired their company to the summit.

Their acquiescence, which was kindly, prompt and cordial, might have been extended to my gesture, but certainly was not to my words, which were quite incomprehensible to them; for when I followed up my question with a remark equally meant to be in Italian, they observed that they did not understand German, and when I tried them in French they gave me the old familiar "non compreney." I next essayed Latin, and was getting terribly bogged in a reminiscence from Virgil, when the man who said he did not "compreeny," observed in a hearty brogue: "Now, if you did but speak English, sir"—and the little problem in foreign exchange was solved. He was a native of Dublin, twenty-five or twenty-six, studying at the College of St. Thomas of Canterbury in Rome, and now released on a short furlough after the recent commemorative ceremonies at St. Peter's.

Soon the steps of the ascent were being counted off immediately before my eyes by the comely and able calves and heels of my new acquaintance, who, good-humoredly urging his comrade in advance, trod down the staircase from under his feet with the firmness of a machine. And thus the two hundred columns unouried themselves around us, and the eight lofty stories placed themselves successively beneath us, and the giant bells hung at our feet like a cluster of extraordinary flowers as our heads rose into a tile of ambrosial air.

On the west was a silver slip of the sea. On the south the distant spires of Leghorn. To the east stretched the warm Arno, looking like gold. Against the north, deliciously stained with a violet suffusion, the marble hights around Carrara, rich with possible statues and the unknown future of art.

DISCOVERIES IN PALESTINE.—The Secretary of the Palestine Exploring Fund writes to the London Times:

When the Committee of the Palestine Exploring Fund sent out their second exploring party to the Holy Land in January last, under the charge of Lieutenant Charles Warren, Royal Engineers, they gave him a general instruction to make Jerusalem his headquarters, and to excavate and investigate in and about the city as much as possible, especially in the sacred inclosure of the Haram esh-Sherif. The result is that outside the walls of the inclosure he has made a discovery which is almost, if not quite as important as any that have ever been made in or about Jerusalem, and which cannot fail to be the fruitful parent of many more. He has found that the south wall of the Haram, which rears its venerable face to the hight of eighty feet above the soil, descends also to no less a depth than fifty-three feet below it—the solid rock of Mount Moriah, on which it is founded, being, covered with that immense thickness of debris. Thus this wall must originally have stood at the hight of one hundred and thirty feet above its foundations, fully justifying the expressions of Josephus, who says concerning it that "if any one looked down from the top of the battlements into the valley he would be giddy, while his sight could not reach to such an immense depth."

The foundation and unworn masonry of the buried portion may be expected to disclose many a secret affecting these venerable walls, secrets which Lieutenant Warren is now diligently occupied in revealing. But this is not all. He found two other things. He found, first, that the eastern wall is prolonged beyond the southern face, and continues in the general direction of Siloam, with all the solidity, and antiquity which characterize its known portions. How far it continues, or what are its exact direction and extent, I expect to hear shortly from Lieutenant Warren. He found, secondly, that below the debris a second south wall exists twenty feet distant from the known one, and of slighter workmanship. How far this wall goes, what its purpose may have been, its relations to the "triple gateway" and the staircase which M. de Saucly believed he had discovered to descend from the triple gateway, how this discovery may affect the piers of the arches below the south-east corner of the inclosure, are questions which I await further information to be able to answer.

Some idea of the operations of the American Tract Society is conveyed by the idea that, during the year ending April 1, 1867, it printed nearly 44,000,000 pages of minor reading matter, with enough more in the form of books to make a total of over 215,000,000 pages. These belonged to 837,676 volumes, and over 7,000,000 copies of tracts.

Robert H. Newell—Orpheus C. Kerr—has in press the novel, Avery Gliddon, to which he is understood to have devoted a great deal of labor for two years past.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, 2 P. M., } Sept. 20, 1867. }

The overland line is down and consequently we have no gold quotations since the morning of the 16th, when the price was 144¾. Last evening greenbacks were 69½ buying, and 70, selling, at San Francisco. We learn from the financial reports from San Francisco, that money continues to accumulate at the reservoirs, and is freely supplied to a rather active demand for general purposes. The high rate of gold reported by telegraph naturally causes a better demand for remittance. The same continues to be well supplied by grain shipments, however. Since the last steamer some $700,000 has been supplied by grain bills, and $600,000 by silver shipments. The rates of exchange remain at 1¾ for coin drafts; 87 per cent. premium on gold for currency drafts; 2 per cent. premium for telegraphic transfers. Gold bars are 880; silver bars, par@¼ discount. Sterling, 48½@. The demand for duties, since Jan. 1st, aggregates, $5,382,583 52. This demand, following the increased importations, has, with the active crop movement, required considerable coin, which demand has drawn bullion through the mint into circulation. The shipments of treasure from San Francisco, which includes such amounts as were originally drawn from Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia, since January 1st, aggregate, $20,163,088 34. The exports of produce continue to increase over those of last year. They are for the year thus far already, in round numbers, $14,000,000.

The Alta of the 11th, says:

At an election for officers of the California Insurance Company (the pioneer of all the locals on this coast), holden on the 9th inst., the following gentlemen were unanimously elected: President—O. T. Hopkins, re-elected. Vice President—H. B. Tichenor, re-elected. Directors—Samuel Merrill, re-elected, A. J. Pope, do; Jerome Lincoln, do; Frederick Castle, do, Judah Baker, Jr., do, Charles Maine, and Peter Sether. The annual report showed a sound and healthy condition of the finances, and a prosperous year's business, notwithstanding unusually heavy losses and vigorous competition. Capital, $200,000, assets, $297,000, receipts for the fiscal year, from all sources, $154,024 41, losses paid, $99,576 50, dividends paid, $44,000, $18,203 80, taxes, $10,573 59. The stock of this company is quoted at 100@100, being much higher than any other local insurance stock, which is mainly the result of the company's immediate withdrawal, from fire business when the Fire Board broke up, and thence forward confining its business to marine risks.

The following list embraces some of the suspensions and failures of National Banks since March 1st, 1867:

March 2.—The National Bank of Newtown, Miss., failed with liabilities amounting to $140,000.

March 2.—The National Bank of Hudson, N. Y., discovered an embezzlement by the cashier to the amount of $50,000. The concern revived after several weeks' suspension, and resumed business.

March 4.—First National Bank of Medina, Mo., failed with liabilities of $32,000.

March 4.—The Mechanics' National Bank of Baltimore broke down from the effects of a series of defalcations, carried on for a long time by two officers of the institution.

July 25.—The Woodsport (Cayuga county) National Bank closed doors, its liabilities amounting to $125,000.

July 26.—The National Bank of Unadilla, Otsego county, failed, its liabilities being $200,000.

July 27.—The Poquonnock National Bank of Bridgeport, Conn., suspended business and offered $500 for the fugitive cashier, W. Hamilton Barnum, who absconded with $50,000.

Sept 7.—The Mechanics' and Traders' Bank of Greenpoint, Long Island, incorporated under the late law, suspended payment on account of the collapse of the Farmers' and Citizens' National Bank at Williamsburg.

Our jobbing trade is becoming generally more active. Produce is beginning to arrive a little more freely, and is bringing good prices. Jobbers are taking all the wheat and flour to be obtained—the former at an advance of 5c per bushel; all the leading brands of flour are advanced from 25c to 50c per bbl. During the week, heavy orders for groceries have been filled for the Upper Columbia. The approach of the rainy season warns the merchants of that country, who are off the line of water transportation, that winter supplies must be purchased soon, hence a large increase in orders, both as to numbers and quantities. As usual the greatest activity in merchandise has been in groceries. Notwithstanding the large orders filled within the last three weeks, stocks are still full, the supplies being kept up by receipts by steamer. Sugars are high. To show something of the condition of the market, we quote from the latest San Francisco reports:

The market is yet but poorly supplied with grocery grades of raws. Strictly No. 1 Hawaiian is particularly scarce and wanted at extreme rates. At present it is difficult to obtain any good substitute for it. The Yellow C and coffee grades furnished by the refineries is altogether inadequate for needed wants; besides, the refineries have none of it to sell at present, having entered upon time contracts, and their present aim and effort is to equalize prices as much as possible so as to force consumers to purchase crushed in lieu thereof. There is at this time scarce 2 cents ₱ lb difference between Oracle A and Yellow C coffees, so that really the former is intrinsically the cheapest and most economical of the two for use. The present price of crushed and powdered is 15c; coffee, 13¼c; granulated, 14c; No. 1 Chloss and Hawaiian would, if there, command 13@13½c. We note the sale of 800 bags Central American raws, say 100,000 lbs, to the California Refinery upon terms withheld. The cargo of the bark Chilena, from Peru, say 3,560 bags, or of 600,000 lbs, was sold some time since, long prior to arrival, to the same refinery, at or about 8½c ₱ lb, the choice of which is now held at 11c—thus showing the recent rise in market values. The last arrivals from Honolulu were to the refineries; the balance, say 1,250 bags, was sold in lots at 12@13c. 100 bags No. 2 sold at 11¾c. The supply of crushed sugar is out of proportion large, and the proprietors manifest some anxiety to sell round lots at current rates, but buyers stand aloof, purchasing sparingly.

Bacon has declined 1c, for sides. Oregon smoked hams are quoted in San Francisco at 17@20c.

The Times of the 9th, says: "We note sales of 150 bbls and 150 hlf bbls Oregon salmon, upon private terms. We quote the former at $36@38 50; the latter at $56@5 50.

The Alta says of wool: "The market remains in a very unsettled and unsatisfactory condition. There are few buyers at any price, and the few possessing sufficient nerve to operate at all are offering but 12½@16c ₱ lb for good to choice shipping grades—prices so low as to make the grower feel that he is working for nothing. As a consequence, holders of any considerable lots of choice prefer to store and await better rates. As a sample of the state of the market we note sale of 30,000 lbs fair to good quality, full clip, in clean condition, at 11½@12c ₱ lb. We quote hurry at 8@10c ₱ lb."

In dry goods, the general features of trade are encouraging in character, and if indications can be relied upon, there is a prospect for a healthy fall business. During the last fortnight there have been two arrivals of ocean steamers, whose heavy freights consisted in considerable part of dry goods for merchants of this city. The demand for goods is not so early this fall as last year, owing in part to the large stocks remaining over from last spring, and in part to the lateness of harvest. However, the season opens with a reasonable activity, and as prices of staple goods are much lower than at any time since the close of the war, buyers are inclined to replenish their stock and select freely without fear of a further decline before they will be able to realize therefrom. The trade with the Upper Columbia, for the season, will fall far behind that of last year, while the sales to the Willamette valley average quite well with corresponding periods of last year.

We hear general satisfaction expressed on all hands regarding the prospects for collections so soon as the new crops can be got into market, as there seems to be a better disposition manifested by farmers to sell their produce at market value to the merchant, than heretofore. If this prove the case, there can exist no reason why the interior traders should not be able to settle up with the Portland merchants and free themselves from debt before the close of the year.
